

This is what you see when you get to the Red Sea. Image courtesy Jim Anderson

Globespan Head For Red Sea

SOME OF the world's most spectacular diving waters are now available at fantastic prices thanks to a new route from flyglobespan.

The web-based airline introduces its first flights to Egypt this winter with a weekly programme from Edinburgh to Sharm el-Sheikh.

Starting on November 7, the airline will fly every Wednesday between Edinburgh and Egypt with prices available from only £129.99 per sector including taxes.

These flights are available on their website www.flyglobespan.com where travellers can also arrange transfers and/or accommodation.

Nestling on the southern edge of the Sinai Peninsula, Sharm el-Sheikh is the Red Sea's most comprehensive and exciting diving destination. It is one of the world's most beautiful and famous deep-sea diving resorts with crystal clear water, magnificent corals, exotic under water flora and rare tropical fish.

From Sharm el-Sheikh you can dive Ras Mohammed, Ras Om El Side, the Straits of Tiran and wrecks like the Thistlegorm and Dunraven.

While flyglobespan may be a new name to the diving fraternity, it has quickly become a major force in the UK low fare travel trade.

Its website now offers flights from 16 UK and Irish airports to 30 worldwide destinations - stretching from Cape Town to Vancouver and covering most over Europe's most popular resorts.

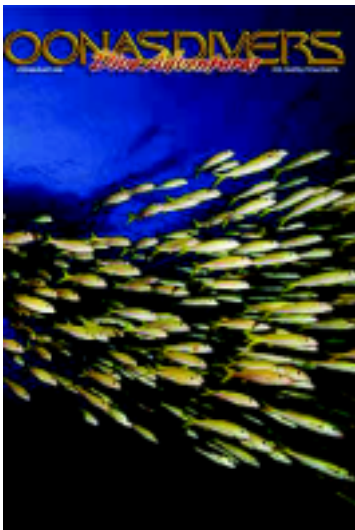

"We are pleased to add such an exciting destination to our programme," confirms flyglobespan chairman Tom Dalrymple. "And particularly delighted that we can offer flights there at such competitive prices.

"I am sure our new customers will enjoy the flyglobespan model and look forward to expanding our programme in the future to include more destinations that will appeal to them."

This is how you get there

Hot Off The Press

OONASDIVERS HAS included some fabulous new tours in their 2008 brochure that are sure to get you scrambling for your passport.

Why not sample Tobago - home to the world's largest brain coral? You will be surprised by what you get for your money at this fantastic Caribbean destination.

El Heirro off the Canary Islands is another gem Oonas has recently uncovered; with breath taking views and diving to match, they can offer you fully escorted diving or walking holidays.

Take a look at Sharks Bay in Egypt, which is within easy reach of Na'ama Bay, has its very own jetty and beautiful views over the beach to Tiran Island.

And if that's not enough to whet your appetite then join the magnificent Royal Evolution expedition into Sudan. Still one of the few remaining pioneering areas of the Red Sea.

The fantastic photograph which made the front cover of this year's brochure, was taken by an Oonasdive's guest, Bartek Strozynski, whilst on board their Southern Red Sea Photo Workshop. The 'Picture of the Day' feature on the Oonasdive website www.oonasdive.com has many more examples of guests' photos taken on Oonasdive tours.

To get your hands on the new Oonasdive brochure, please contact: 01323 648924 or Email: info@oonasdive.com

Oonasdive will also be appearing at the NEC Dive Show on October 13-14. So to meet the crew in person, visit stand 941!

BECOME A COMMERCIAL DIVER
 HSE APPROVED DIVER TRAINING
 Professional Scuba - 11th February
 Surface Supplied - 10th March
 Wet Bell (top-up) - 7th April www.professionaldivingacademy.com t: +44 (0)1369 701 701