Bag It Up

LAST JULY Mike Fenney sent me one of his compact scuba binders as he was keen to show off the new colours it came in - Red/Grey. I have to apologise to him as I took it straight home, put it in my dive bag and forgot all about it. Since then he has added another colour Blue/Grey and both look good.

Dive logs make a range of specialist log pages for nitrox, photographers etc which fit this compact binder. It measures 21cm by 17cm, is water-resistant and padded with mesh pockets, pen holders, slots for qualification cards and even room for a mobile phone. If you like it will even take Filofax pages.

What do I keep in it? Quicktide tide tables, a pen, smallish adjustable spanner, allen key with blanking plug for 1st stage, keys, my scotsac log book, qualification cards and any other little bits and pieces I may need on the day.

On the log pages supplied there is space for your own details, name address etc plus lots of pages for notes, your dive details and on the back a grid - if like me - you like to draw maps of sites.

Divers need something to protect their log books from getting wet and I've seen everything from zip-lock bags to old Asda bags being used. Why not have a proper custom bag designed for the job. This is just one of many excellent and useful products made by this company.

Visit their website at www.dive-logs.com to see the full range, I'm sure you'll find something to suit your needs.

Jack Morrison

Cousteau Cracker

FOR ALL you Jacques Cousteau fans out there, it is worth noting that a new DVD box set featuring the man himself is to be released on March 10.

The three disc box set entitled Jacques Cousteau - New Zealand, Tahiti, Cuba & Cape Horn, follows Captain Cousteau and the team as they travel to encounter exotic marine life in their magnificent habitats.

Episodes include: Haiti - Waters of Sorrow; Marquesas Islands - Mountains from the Sea; New Zealand - The Smouldering Sea and Tahiti - Fire Waters.

The box set costs £29.99.
